

Monday 11 February

In the last week before half-term we celebrate all our difference in our bi-annual Diversity week. In this week we have a range of visiting speakers and activities to help students develop a greater understanding of the world around them, alongside focused work during normal curriculum lessons. Please click here for a copy of the timetable and lesson activities.

On Monday Year 11 Historians return to the Theatre Royal in Norwich for “Hitler on Trial”, as part of their GCSE studies.

If you drive past the school in the next few weeks don't be surprised if you see some building work being undertaken, as we start renewing all the fencing around the school site and works to install a new catering pod at the rear of the school. Both these projects have been funded by a government grant to improve the safety of the site and as part of a healthy schools' campaign.

We hope that all our students and staff enjoy a restful half-term break.

Julia Upton