As we get ever closer to the end of this half term, Year 11 continue to be working hard to achieve the best results that they are capable of. They have dealt with a difficult situation which is a worrying time for them with good humour and a calmness which has been heartening to see.

In a week where we are now able to see students' faces again for the first time in months, I am hopeful that this is the first step in a return to normality for everyone at school. This good news must be tempered with a recognition that the virus is still around and we must, in school, do all that we can to ensure we maintain the other social distancing measures which help to keep everyone safe. Back in the summer we talked about all of us in school acting as a community to protect each other and there are still a number of students and staff in school who are more vulnerable and we must do all that we can to make those people feel as safe and comfortable as possible.

As I said last week we are beginning to look at planning more extra-curricular trips and events and I am hopeful that all being well we will be able to further re-instate some of the extra things that students and staff so much enjoy beyond the classroom.

With warmest wishes

Simon Martin

Do nothing out of selfish ambition or vain conceit. Rather, in humility value others above yourselves, not looking to your own interests but each of you to the interests of the others.
